At Sea

Then boys found themselves on a huge warship. Wow! It was the biggest ship they had ever seen! Top was playing a sailor who was always jolly even though he never had a moment's peace. Tip was the commander of the whole crew. At recreation time, he allowed his crew to cruise about in motorboats. Can you spot Tip and Top?

Next Tip, Top and Tap played dockers, whose job it was to unload cargo from enormous ships that stood at anchor in the port. Again, poor Top was given the most strenuous work – the carrying of heavy sacks and boxes. He worked up quite a sweat! Fortunately, Tap the dog came to his aid, and the work was soon done. Tip played a crane operator. His work was much less demanding than Top's – he needed only to pull a lever for the crane to lift the cargo from the bowels of the ship quickly and effortlessly.

At Sea

Why are Tip and Top dressed in striped shirts and sailor's caps, and why do they have paddles in their hands? Well, they've taken the opportunity to act in an adventure film set at sea. Which ships will they command? This thrilling tale of courageous sailors is by celebrated Czech artist Vojtěch Kubašta, whose innovative pop-ups have given inspiration to paper engineers all over the world! All aboard!
